Training that transforms

Training Plan

Five Day Leadership and Management Training

A training plan for your organisation

What is the purpose of the training?

The purpose of the training is to initiate a process of rapid improvement by means of achieving a shared understanding of the correct leadership and management methods that we need to employ, if we are to achieve our stated goals.

What is the reason for the training?

The reason for the training is that the majority of our leaders and managers and staff are trained as technical specialists: i.e. they are employed predominantly on the strength of their technical competence and background.

On the technical level, our leaders and managers are very good.

But in their role, as an inspirational leader -manager, there are some definite gaps.

We need all our people to be thinking about how they can develop their personal management and leadership skills.

As a result of the predicted changes that are likely to occur in the future, there is currently a need to provide some good in-house leadership and management training, so that we will be better equipped to achieve our stated aims for 2016 and beyond.

What is the basic premise of the course?

Please read the following page:

All effective leader-managers need to develop the following six abilities:

1. A sense of clear purpose

The ability to create a clear and distinct goal, and commit to it for long enough to attain it.

As opposed to; when difficulties and setbacks appear, dropping the first goal and starting new, second goal, then later dropping the second goal to start the third.

2. Excellent communication skills; accurate language

The ability to accurately explain your ideas to others, in such a way that they will understand you, agree with you and will act in accordance with your ideas; As opposed to suffering an excessive number of miscommunications, misunderstandings and avoidable upsets.

3. Rational, logical planning skills

The ability to analyse the facts and formulate detailed, written plans of action that will achieve the goal in the most efficient manner possible.

As opposed to being constantly uncertain and always feeling that you are "reacting to events; reacting to the current crisis".

4. Rational conflict

The ability to guide and harmonise the various personalities in the team, so that they are more able to synchronize their actions and be more likely to reinforce and complement each other: As opposed to a disharmonious atmosphere; office character clashes, internal squabbles and people conspiring against each other. In addition; the ability to handle difficult conversations and performance issues.

5. Inspire and motivate yourself (personal management)

The ability to maintain a positive mental state of optimism and realistic self-confidence, especially during the tough times. As opposed to, losing heart after a defeat or series of setbacks or criticisms.

6. Inspire and motivate other people (leadership qualities)

The ability to inspire the positive emotions of self-belief, desire and self-confidence in all the other members of the team, especially during difficult times. As opposed to; allowing excessive negativity, pessimism or fear to take hold of the team and weaken its spirit.

A leader-manager is one who has these abilities developed to a high degree.

The six themes are developed as follows:

Leadership and Management Training

Day One - How can you get the best performance from yourself and others?

Forms of power

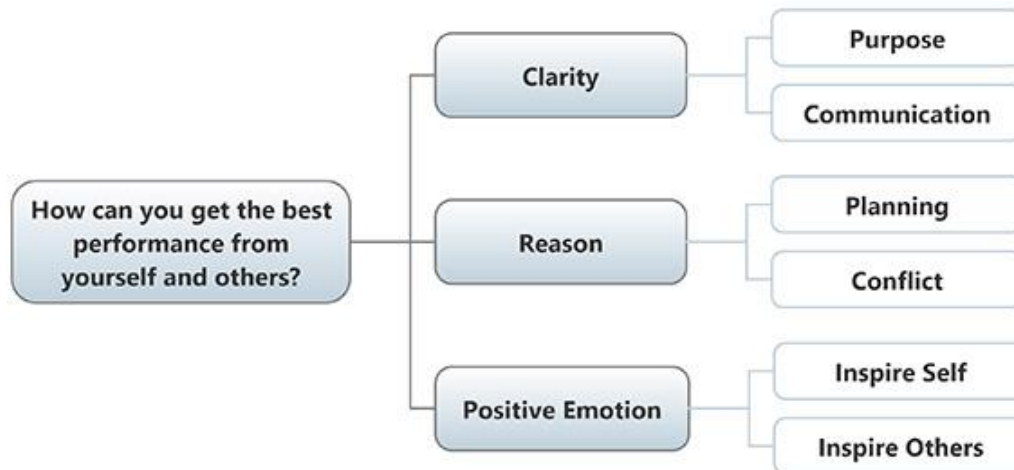

You should use your "power" over others properly. Make "Reason" the source of your power:

- Success comes from the application of definite principles.
- We call these principles "the primary virtues".

Primary virtues

Six key attributes for 'leader-managers' to develop

1. Clarity of purpose: Clear purpose, goals and standards.
2. Clarity of communication Verbal clarity with no ambiguity.
3. Planning ahead: working intelligently to avoid future problems.
4. Conflict resolution: conflicts resolved properly and quickly.
5. The ability to inspire self: How to create and sustain a positive, strong and confidence attitude.
6. The ability to inspire others: How to inspire a positive atmosphere.

Positive attitude and how it affects tangible results

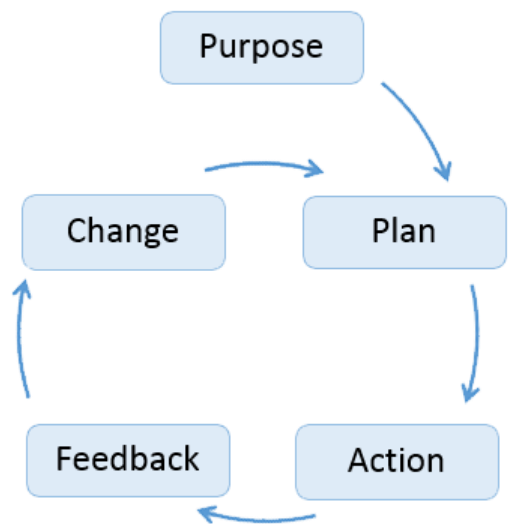

1. Positive mental attitude. How it works
2. Positive mental attitude techniques
3. Manage your own mind. (Do not allow your thoughts or language to become destructive)
4. The language of a leader

The EDISON success formula

All successful action can be described by the following five words:

1. Purpose
2. Plan
3. Action
4. Feedback
5. Change

1. The Purpose: is the goal
2. The Plan: is what you are going to do about the goal
3. The Action: is the implementation of the plan
4. The Feedback: is the results of the actions you take
5. The Change: is the adjustment in the plans and actions, based on the feedback results you are getting

Failure formula

1. Indecision or unclear targets
2. No written plan - wing it
3. Procrastination – put it off
4. Become disheartened in the face of set-backs and disappointments
5. Stand still. Do the same thing this year as you did last year

The value of 'Critical Feedback'

Forms of feedback - constructive and destructive

Turning negative people into positive

1. Four steps to an emotion
2. Beware asking 'killer questions'
3. Instead; ask intelligent 'problem solving questions'

Summary and Action plans

In business clear communication is an absolute requirement. Ambiguous or overemotional communication will cost you too much. Communication as a transfer of information and emotion.

The Master Communication

2. Two video examples
3. Two examples to learn from

Communications model

How to vary your communication style

Practical tips

2. Clear definitions: How to be certain of meaning, and avoid ambiguity.
3. Structure your message; Don't ramble. Be more organised.
4. Language of a leader The Full Monty speech. For the purpose of understanding leadership principles: we will make an analysis of Field Marshal Montgomery's speech.

Summary and Action Plans

Day Three - Managing Conflict

Conflict is inevitable. So, managers had better learn to deal with conflict according to the proper principles. If intellectual conflict degenerates into emotional conflict, everyone loses. This course gives three ways to sort things out properly.

Four ways to approach conflict situations

1. By using the principles of "Reason" - YES
2. By getting angry and frustrated- no
3. By getting upset and tearful- no
4. By ignoring the situation and just hoping that it goes away -no

Method One - The quick method

1. "Nip it in the bud" technique
2. Use objective language
3. Protect their self-image
4. Give them a way out
5. Distinguish reasons from excuses
6. Ten practice scenarios

Method Two - Discovery Method

Looking for the underlying cause of behaviour

Five categories to take into account when looking for reasons:

1. Communication breakdown
2. Factual reasons
3. Skill/ability reasons
4. Emotional reasons
5. Home life reasons

Example exercise

Method Three - Implication questions

Use "Long term consequence - Implication questions" to stimulate a change behaviour.

- Set the scene
- Pain consequence questions
- Pleasure questions
- Ask for commitment

Notes on handling your own emotions

1. Monitor your 'self-talk'
2. Watch your own body language
3. Be aware of your voice tone

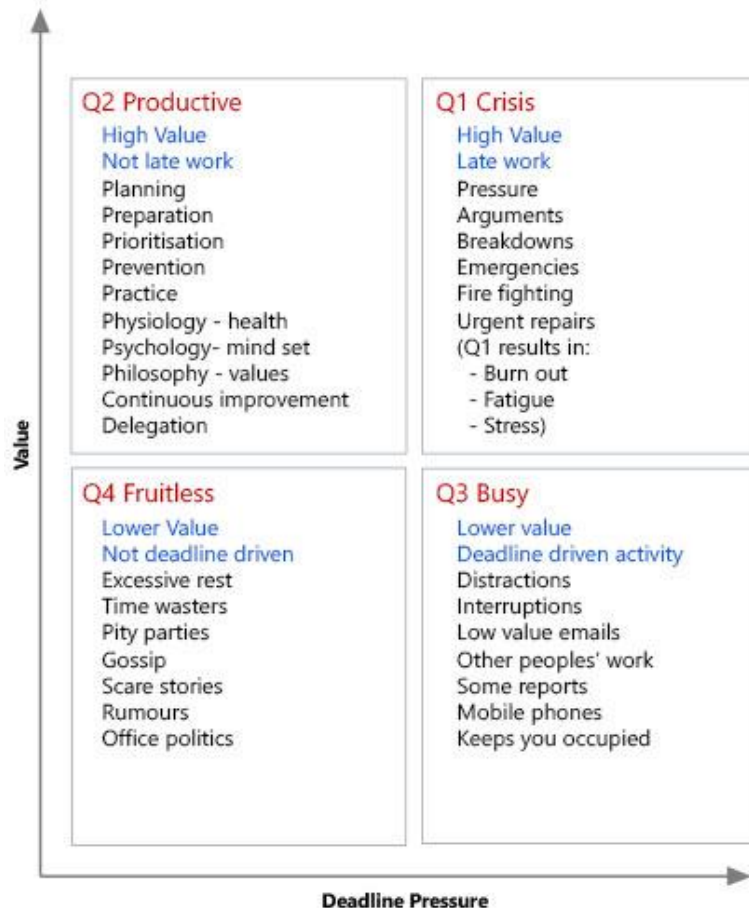

Summary and Action Plans

Day Four - Time management, planning ahead, prioritisation, delegation

Time management training

What is the most valuable use of your time right now?

Use the two principles of deadline pressure and value as key indicators

Four types of activity

- Q1 - Crisis Zone
- Q2 - Productive Zone
- Q3 - Busy Zone
- Q4 - Fruitless Zone

Distinguish between being 'Busy' and being 'Productive'

Your most hated enemy: The busy but non-productive day (ever had one?)

Time Management Goal

To maximise your time in Q2 productive time, by managing your Q3 busy work, and minimize your time on Q4 fruitless tasks.

How to win: Handle the big three time wasters

1. Other people - who waste your time
2. Your own bad habits - where you waste your own time
3. Poor or non-existent management systems - that waste everyone's time!

Win through delegation

How to delegate

Why people who should delegate, don't

Win through better prioritisation

Manage your priorities by means of a decision matrix

Answer the question: What is the most valuable use of my time right now?

Decision matrix

1. Which one/what kind decisions
2. Yes/no decisions - should we/should we not?
3. What order decisions?

Manage interruptions by means of the 80/20 principle

1. The Pareto time management principle states that 80% of the value comes from 20% of the causes
2. 80% of the value of the interruption will be in 20% or less of what they say
3. Manage the interruption using the "Pareto question"

The law of diminishing returns

More is not better

Mental mapping

To find problem, list the causes, identify the solution

Time management tips

Fifty-one-line pieces of time management advice in the form of a questionnaire

Example: Do you tidy up as you go, or do you leave a trail of destruction?

Summary and Action Plans

Day Five - Joint team working and problem solving

How to use the groups' combined brain power to solve problems?

1. Mapping the problems
2. Identifying the cause and interrupting them
3. Identifying the implications of a problem and creating countermeasures
4. Identifying any unexpected up side to the problem
5. Creating definite plans of action

Compromise

Compromise is the mutual giving of concessions to arrive at the middle ground.

Compromise can also be a betrayal of your standards. This session covers "When you should compromise and when you should not".

Team work

You cannot achieve goals of great magnitude on your own. Because no single mind has sufficient knowledge.

No single individual has sufficient brains, motivation, energy, time, talent or education. To achieve anything really significant, you will need the talents, experience, enthusiasm and natural ability of other, additional minds.

Team roles

What are the eight team roles?

Is your profile static or changeable?

Application of team roles
